What the Ladybird Heard by Julia Donaldson

LO: To write an alternative ending.

Have you enjoyed reading our story this week? What did you think about the ending?

To finish your learning this week we would like you to move on from being Super Story Tellers and now become an Amazing Author!

We would like you to create and write a different ending to the story. Try to do this independently, you can discuss your ideas with your grown up first though!

Here are some of our examples; how will you write yours?

"The robbers drove silently through the dead of night, ready to steal the cow with all their might, they jumped out the van and opened the door, their map of the farm fell crashing to the floor...."

"The ladybird told the animals of the robbers plan, then she told the farmer man. The robbers arrived late at night, the farmer lit some fireworks to give them a fright!..."

STEPS TO SUCCESS!

Remember your punctuation, capital letters, finger spaces and full stops are a must!

Check your spellings carefully, have you used your sounds to help you?

Read your work aloud, does it make sense? How could you make your sentences more interesting? Can you add some adjectives?
